DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 1-9 are objected to because of the following informalities: These claims contain, or depend on a claim, which contains the word "characterized." This term can introduce a question of scope. Applicant is requested to replace this word with "comprising" or "wherein," as the case may be

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claim1, the phrase "and the like" renders the claim(s) indefinite because the claim(s) include(s) elements not actually disclosed (those encompassed by "or the like"), thereby rendering the scope of the claim(s) unascertainable. See MPEP § 2173.05(d).

Regarding claim 1, the phrase "particularly for" renders the claim indefinite because it is unclear whether the limitation(s) following the phrase are part of the claimed invention. See MPEP § 2173.05(d).

A broad range or limitation together with a narrow range or limitation that falls within the broad range or limitation (in the same claim) is considered indefinite, since the resulting claim does not clearly set forth the metes and bounds of the patent protection desired. Note the explanation given by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences in Ex parte Wu, 10 USPQ2d 2031, 2033 (Bd. Pat. App. & Inter. 1989), as to where broad language is followed by "such as" and then narrow language. The Board stated that this can render a claim indefinite by raising a question or doubt as to whether the feature introduced by such language is (a) merely exemplary of the remainder of the claim, and therefore not required, or (b) a required feature of the claims. Note also, for example, the decisions of Ex parte Steigewald, 131 USPQ 74 (Bd. App. 1961); Ex parte Hall, 83 USPQ 38 (Bd. App. 1948); and Ex parte Hasche, 86 USPQ 481 (Bd. App. 1949). In the present instance, claim 4 recites the broad recitation "between 12 and 200", and the claim also recites "between 50 and 90," which is the narrower statement of the range/limitation. Also, claim 5 recites the broad recitation "10 and 150" and the narrower range "20 and 40." Also, claim 7 recites the broad recitation "additives" and the narrower range "UV...agent."

Regarding claim 9, the phrase "namely for" renders the claim indefinite because it is unclear whether the limitation(s) following the phrase are part of the claimed invention. See MPEP § 2173.05(d).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Art Unit: 1771

5. Claims 1-2, 6-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Tsutsumi et al (5223311).

Tsutsumi is concerned with the creation of composite laminate used in automobiles and industrial materials (col. 3, lines 12-15). Said laminate comprising an ethylene butyl acrylate copolymer film (col. 10, lines 29-30) extrusion coated (col. 8, lines 50-55) to a nonwoven polypropylene fabric (col. 11, lines 15-20 and col. 12, lines 15-17).

Said film having a butyl acrylate content between 1 to 40% (col. 4, lines 6-10 and 58-61).

Tsutsumi discloses the use of colorants (col. 13, lines 61-69).

Tsutsumi discloses the use of flame retardants (col. 13, lines 31-40).

Tsutsumi does not require plasticizers or solvents.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 3-5 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tsutsumi et al (5223311).

Tsutsumi teaches the use of nonwoven fabrics, but is silent with respect to the means of bonding said fabric. The examiner takes official notice that it is common and well known in the art to bond nonwoven fabrics by thermal bonding. As such, it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art to utilize thermal bonding. Such a modification would have been motivated by the desire to create a stronger fabric with a common well-known process. The examiner notes that the facts asserted to be common and well-known are capable of instant and unquestionable demonstration as being well-known. To adequately traverse such a finding, an applicant must specifically point the supposed errors in the examiner's action, which would include stating why the noticed fact is not considered to be common knowledge or well-known in the art.

Tsutsumi is silent with respect to the basis weight of the fabric and the amount of the coating. It would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art to alter the basis weight of the fabric and the amount of coating, since such a modification would have involved a mere change in the size of a component. A change in size is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art. In re Rose, 105 USPQ 237 (CCPA 1955). The skilled artisan would have been motivated to vary the basis weight of the fabric and the amount of coating by the desire to render the laminate suitable for various end use applications.

In response to applicant's limitation of a "protective hood," a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. See In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963).
